

The free starter bundle.

Four tools to begin — one from each phase of the loop. Enough to interrupt the symptom-anxiety cycle today, before anything else changes.

Sarah Anticich Consulting · The Executive Frame™

You don't need the whole system to start. These four tools — one to Centre, two to Clarify and Choose, one for a flare — are the ones to reach for first.

01 · Physiological Sigh (Centre)

Two short inhales through the nose, then a long exhale through the mouth. Repeat three to five times. The fastest voluntary way to down-regulate arousal — use it the instant a symptom or feeling spikes.

02 · S.H.F.T.™ Reset (Centre)

Stop — name it (“I am narrowing”). Hold — one physiological sigh. Focus — what matters in the next ten minutes? Take Action — one deliberate step. Under two minutes, any time.

07 · Fact vs. Story (Clarify)

Split a convincing thought in two: the fact an outside observer would record, and the story your brain attached. You don't have to argue with the story — only describe the fact.

18 · Flare Protocol (Choose)

When symptoms escalate: settle the body first, then work through your planned steps hour by hour — and know the threshold (new character or severity, or red flags) where a flare means medical review.

Try one today

The tool I'll try first, and when

What I noticed when I used it

If these help, the full 18-tool library, the workbooks and the programme build on exactly this foundation. Start where you are; go as deep as you need.

Educational only; does not replace individualised medical advice. In a crisis, dial 111 (NZ). The Executive Frame™, EF™ Health and the S.H.F.T.™ protocol are trademarks of Sarah Anticich Consulting.