

Claiming your fee back.

How payment works, and how to seek reimbursement from your health insurer.

Dr Sarah Anticich · Clinical & Organisational Psychologist · July 2026

How payment works

Your place is confirmed by full payment at the time of booking. We then email you an itemised receipt — this is the document your insurer needs. Keep it: insurers cannot accept EFTPOS or credit-card slips as proof of what the payment was for.

SOUTHERN CROSS MEMBERS

We are a Southern Cross-affiliated provider.

01 Check your cover first

Look for psychology or mental-health benefits in your plan, or use “Request prior approval” in My Southern Cross before you book, so you know what your policy will contribute.

02 Pay at booking and keep your itemised receipt

It shows the provider, your name as the patient, the date of service and the amount — everything Southern Cross requires.

03 Claim in the My Southern Cross app or website

Upload a clear photo of the itemised receipt where all details are readable. Paper claim forms by post are also accepted.

04 Reimbursement

Southern Cross advises claims are processed within about seven working days of being received (postal claims take longer).

Other health insurers

- Check your policy schedule for a psychology, mental-health or allied-health benefit — and note any excess, co-payment or annual limit.
- Some policies require a GP or specialist referral letter before reimbursing psychology services — check before you book, and ask us if you need supporting documentation.
- Submit the itemised receipt (plus proof of payment if requested) through your insurer's usual claims channel — app, member portal, email or post.

What your itemised receipt includes

Provider name and details (Sarah Anticich Consulting · Dr Sarah Anticich, Clinical Psychologist) · your name as the patient · the date of service · a description of the service · the amount paid, including GST. If your insurer needs anything further, contact us and we will provide it.

— GOOD TO KNOW

Cover varies by policy, and reimbursement is a matter between you and your insurer – we cannot guarantee a claim will be accepted. Programme fees remain payable at booking regardless of the outcome. If you are unsure whether your policy contributes, contact your insurer before you book – it only takes a few minutes and avoids surprises.